5. Cross-Dataset Analytical Insights

The following insights are derived by joining all four datasets: NGO master, Donor database, Program tracking, and Beneficiary records.

Q1 — Sector CSR Funding

The sector receiving the highest CSR funding can be identified from the donor database grouped by sector_focus. Corporate donors dominate funding in sectors like Education and Health.

Q2 — Program Success Rates

Programs are ranked by beneficiary completion rates. High success rates correlate with shorter, well-funded programs in urban or semi-urban states.

Q3 — State Budget Allocation

Comparing program budgets against donor funds by state reveals allocation imbalances — some states receive disproportionately low investment relative to donor contributions.

Q4 — Donor Churn Predictors

ML models identify Donation Amount, Donor Type, and Sector Focus as the top predictors of donor churn. High-value donors in niche sectors are at elevated risk.

Q5 — Demographic Impact

Female beneficiaries and BPL-category individuals show comparable or higher success rates in Education and Health programs compared to the general beneficiary pool.

Q6 — FCRA Registration & Impact

FCRA-registered NGOs demonstrate measurably higher average program success rates compared to non-registered organisations, suggesting regulatory compliance correlates with program quality.

Q7 — BPL State Coverage

States with the highest BPL beneficiary percentages do not always show lower success rates, indicating that targeted programs can effectively serve economically vulnerable populations.

Q8 — Program Duration vs Completion

Programs lasting 12–24 months show the highest average completion rates. Very long programs (>36 months) see declining completion due to dropout effects.

Q9 — Cost-per-Beneficiary

Community programs have the lowest cost-per-beneficiary, while Healthcare programs are the most resource-intensive. Scaling low-cost categories could maximise impact.

Q10 — Payment Mode & Retention

Donors using NEFT or Standing Instructions show the highest retention rates. One-time cheque donors are the most likely to churn.

6. Strategic Recommendations

Donor Retention	Focus outreach on medium-risk donors before they churn. Encourage recurring payment modes (NEFT/Standing Instruction) during onboarding to improve long-term retention.
Program Efficiency	Prioritise replication of programs with sub-Rs 5,000 cost-per-beneficiary. Community and Education programs offer the best impact-to-cost ratio.
Geographic Equity	States receiving low donor funding relative to their program budgets should be highlighted for CSR outreach to bridge the allocation gap.
BPL Inclusion	Maintain and expand programs with high BPL beneficiary penetration. Success rates in these groups are comparable, disproving the assumption that serving vulnerable populations reduces program effectiveness.
FCRA Compliance	Partner preferentially with FCRA-registered NGOs for program implementation given their demonstrably higher success rates.
ML-Driven Targeting	Deploy the churn prediction model to proactively identify and engage at-risk donors. The Random Forest / Gradient Boosting model achieves strong AUC-ROC — use it to prioritise retention campaigns.
